CHALLENGING CONVERSATIONS AND CONTEXTS: MANAGING DIVERSE EMOTIONS, VALUES, BELIEFS AND INTERESTS

Thursday, June 22, 2017
12:00pm – 3:00pm

This session is designed for new and existing faculty interested in developing, reinforcing and advancing their communication skill ability in challenging conversations and contexts.

WHAT YOU WILL LEARN -
- Relationship centered communication skills to communicate respectful dissent and relational repair, while working with diverse beliefs and power gradients in group settings.
- How to apply relationship centered communication skills in several standardized patient/colleague cases involving diverse perspectives, values, differences of opinion and conflicted/highly emotional conversations with team members and learners.
- Goal based effective feedback techniques for learner, peers and supervisors.

The session will be limited to 8 participants. Prior to your session, you will receive a survey related to your session goals. Cases for your session will be chosen based on your survey responses. You will also receive preparation material ahead of your session to enable us to use the session time for small group practice and feedback.
